The workshop will provide an international forum for industrial, academic, and government researchers to present and discuss the present as well as future status of NGN (Next Generation Networks) and their impact on E-Commerce and Enterprise Computing and other applications. It aims to bring together researchers from the network and applications & services communities to share their experiences and to foster collaboration for new and innovative NGN architectures and services. Original papers are solicited that include the topics listed below but are not limited to:

- NGN deployment strategies, regulatory issues
- NGN-related standardization activities, their scope and schedules
- NGN architectures and requirements
- New E-Commerce and Enterprise Computing services and requirements on NGN
- Innovative services on NGN
- Enabling technologies for NGN

The workshop will consist of keynote, contributed papers, and panel discussions. Keynote presentations and formal paper sessions will provide baseline knowledge for discussion.
